

Creating an account with Tribecafilm.com gives you access to more features and services, like Wish Lists.

Want to sign up?

Click here and we'll take care of you.

Already have an account?

Click here to sign in.

FESTIVAL | FILM GUIDE ARCHIVE | MESKADA
NARRATIVE FEATURE | 89 MIN | 2010

MESKADA

- LIKE
- TWEET
- STUMBLE
- TUMBLR

The small, affluent town of Hilliard is rocked to its core following the brutal murder of a young boy. Heading the investigation, local detective Noah Cordin (Nick Stahl, In the Bedroom) follows a lead that takes him back to his hometown on the other side of Meskada County, Caswell, a town forced to the brink of destitution in the wake of the recession. As his investigation picks up intensity, Cordin is torn between old loyalties and new responsibilities, and the victim's grieving mother launches a battle of will and vengeance with the citizens of Caswell. The ensuing rift between these two vastly different communities in troubled rural America soon opens wide, igniting a full-on class war....

Writer/director Josh Sternfeld's (Winter Solstice, TFF '04) taut script depicts a quintessentially American story of tensions between the haves and the have-nots, using the detective genre as a springboard to examine deeper issues of class and community. Stahl gives a bravura performance as an archetypal American lawman—a man on the border between two worlds whose decisions will determine the fate of both.

Connect with this film

Website

Interests

Thriller

The small, affluent town of Hilliard is rocked to its core following the brutal murder of a young boy. Heading the investigation, local detective Noah Cordin (Nick Stahl, In the Bedroom) follows a lead that takes him back to his hometown on the other side of Meskada County, Caswell, a town forced to the brink of destitution in the wake of the recession. As his investigation picks up intensity, Cordin is torn between old loyalties and new responsibilities, and the victim's grieving mother launches a battle of will and vengeance with the citizens of Caswell. The ensuing rift between these two vastly different communities in troubled rural America soon opens wide, igniting a full-on class war....

Writer/director Josh Sternfeld's (Winter Solstice, TFF '04) taut script depicts a quintessentially American story of tensions between the haves and the have-nots, using the detective genre as a springboard to examine deeper issues of class and community. Stahl gives a bravura performance as an archetypal American lawman—a man on the border between two worlds whose decisions will determine the fate of both.

Film Information

Year: 2010

Length: 89 minutes

Language: English

Country: USA

Premiere: World

Cast & Credits

Primary Cast: Nick Stahl, Rachel Nichols, Kellan Lutz, Jonathan Tucker, Norman Reedus, Grace Gummer, James McCaffrey, Laura Benanti

Director: Josh Sternfeld

Screenwriter: Josh Sternfeld

Producer: Jen Gaten, Ron Stein, Jay Kubassek, Shawn Rice, Michael Goodin

Press Contacts

Press Contact

Brian Clark

Falco Ink.

New York, NY 10019

Phone: 212 445 7100

brianclark@falcoink.com

Press Contact

Betsy Rudnick

Falco Ink

New York, NY 10019

Phone: 212-445-7100

betsyrudnick@falcoink.com

Press Contact

Brian Clark

Falco Ink.

New York, NY 10019

Phone: 212 445 7100

brianclark@falcoink.com

Press Contact

Betsy Rudnick

Falco Ink

New York, NY 10019

Phone: 212-445-7100

betsyrudnick@falcoink.com

About the Director(s)

Josh Sternfeld studied filmmaking at NYU Graduate Film School, where he wrote and directed the short film Balloons, Streamers (1997), which screened at the New York Film Festival and was distributed by the Sundance Channel. His first feature, Winter Solstice, premiered at Tribeca in 2004.

COMMENTS – JOIN THE CONVERSATION

0 comments

livefyre

Sign in

1 person listening

	+ Follow		Share
		Post comment as...

Newest | Oldest | Top Comments